

Photo of the Week: Camping in the Ecuadorian Highlands

Posted At : June 14, 2013 9:45 AM | Posted By : Dipika Chawla

Related Categories: backpacking, Ecuador, ecotourism

These travelers are camping on the shores of a peaceful lagoon in Cajas National Park, located in the highlands of Ecuador. The name "Cajas" is derived from the indigenous Quichua word that means "gateway to the snowy mountains." Traveling with a sustainable tour operator like Expediciones Apullacta will ensure that you not only enjoy the best trails and camping spots, but also that you won't cause any unintentional harm to these fragile ecosystems.

Find sustainable hotels and tour operators in Ecuador